WHY YOU'LL LOVE THIS TRIP

Spend a day taking in the majesty and mystery of unforgettable Petra. You will be blown away at your first sight of the Treasury.

From the top of Mt Nebo take in the views over Jordan.

Later journey to the lowest point on earth and experience the feeling of being weightless while you float in the super salty Dead Sea.

THE ROSE RED CITY

The day before visiting Petra we traveled the iconic King's Highway.

On the way from Madaba, the city of mosaics to Wadi Musa, which is a home to Petra, we stopped along the way at several stunning places such as Mount Nebo, Karak Castle and Umm ar-Rasas.

As we were getting nearer to our dream destination, we started to wonder what will be the best way to explore Petra. Yes, you can read as many travel guides about

Petra as you want, same as us before the trip, but we bet that except for the excitement you will also find a bit unnerving the fact that you do not know exactly what to expect.

We wanted our day in Petra to be perfect. We even changed our whole Jordan itinerary as the weather for our original date for Petra looked unpromising as the cold front and rain were arriving in Jordan.

Travel to Jordan and visit the rose-hued fortress city of Petra, which was the capital of the ancient Nabataeans - a mysterious people who carved a trading empire from the desert in what is now modern Jordan. Take time to explore the extraordinary beauty of Petra's rock-hewn architecture and to discover its history. There's also time to float in the legendary Dead Sea and see Jerusalem shimmering in the distance from mosaic-adorned Mt Nebo. This short break amid ancient wonders is the perfect way to cap off a voyage to the Middle East.

RECOMMENDED TOURS

Pros – One positive thing that a guided tour brings is having the peace of mind that all of the daily activities and logistics are pre-planned and taken care of. Guides bring a lot of value as they know more about an area so that they can give an extraordinary amount of facts and insight. They are also there to take care of any issues or questions you may have throughout the duration of the trip.

Overall, taking a guided trip lowers travel stress as all you need to do is focus on exploring what's in front of you.

G adventures specialize in the most authentic experiences possible. They encourage you to step off the beaten path, embrace the unexpected and immerse yourself in the extraordinary. Choose your travel style (basic, standard, luxury) and be prepared for authentic food, accommodations, and local transportation so you can be brought face to face with the world's most fascinating cultures, customs, and awe-inspiring wildlife. Lastly, they have an average tour size of only 10 people, so you don't feel like part of a crowd!
